Your 44 Cents at Work for the Industry

Our Five Pillars of Impact

Every 44 cents contributed to SAPPA fuels meaningful work across the pecan industry. Here's how your levy drives lasting impact through our Five Pillars:

Addressing Nickel MRL in the European Union

Dear Industry Members,

SAPPA would like to inform all stakeholders that we are acutely aware of the European Union's current restrictions on nickel Maximum Residue Limits (MRLs), and the implications these have for the South African pecan industry.

The EU has recently enforced stricter limits on the permissible levels of nickel in food products, including tree nuts. While these regulations aim to enhance consumer safety, they pose a potential barrier to market access for pecan exports, particularly in cases where naturally occurring nickel levels in soil may contribute to higher readings in pecan kernels.

Please be assured that SAPPA is actively engaged on this issue. We are currently...

Oes-Nuus: Sterk Begin en Positiewe Tekens

Die 2025-oesseisoen het vinnig en doeltreffend afgeskop. Tot op hede is sowat 5 500 ton reeds deur verwerkers ontvang, wat redelik meer is as die vorige drie jare.

Aan die uitvoerfront is daar ook goeie vordering: ongeveer 35 seevraghouders vol in-dop neutte is reeds verskeep.

Sterkte vir die res van die oes.

Update on the Mexican Pecan Industry – Insights from Real Torio's Arsenio González

SAPPA recently had the opportunity to meet online with Mr. Arsenio González, director of Real Torio and president of the Mexican Pecan Council, to discuss the current state of the Mexican pecan industry. He shared a realistic perspective on the difficulties the industry is navigating at the moment.

Ongoing drought conditions—now persisting for several years—remain the primary concern. Most Mexican pecan regions rely heavily on underground water for irrigation, and despite occasional rain, groundwater levels remain critically low. While investment in more efficient irrigation systems can help conserve water, the high cost of installation and maintenance places additional strain on farmers already struggling with tight cash flow.

This financial pressure is further intensified by prolonged payment schedules and declining profitability. According to Mr. González, pecan farmland values have dropped to around 60% of their value from just three years ago. “Only the most productive and efficient orchards are managing to stay afloat.”

Looking ahead, expectations for the current crop are modest...

Waardevolle Samekoms in Streek 7

Op 28 Mei 2025 het produsente uit Streek 7 byeengekom vir 'n insiggewende en geslaagde produsentedag wat deur Daniel Bruwer, SAPPA-direkteur van die streek, georganiseer is. Die geleentheid is in Potchefstroom gehou en het verskeie kundige sprekers ingesluit wat onderwerpe soos grondkunde, grond mikrobies en gewasbeskerming, boerderypraktyke, politiek, asook SAPPA se navorsingsprojekte en 'n markoorsig bespreek het.

Hoewel die inhoud van die aanbiedings van groot waarde was, het Daniel uitgelig dat die grootste waarde van só 'n dag dikwels lê in die gesprekke tussen boere self. In 'n streek soos Streek 7—waar pekanneutboerderye wydverspreid is—bied hierdie samekomste 'n kosbare geleentheid vir produsente om ervaringe te deel, vrae te vra, foute en suksesse te bespreek, en mekaar se wysheid te benut.

SAPPA moedig alle produsente aan om kommunikasieplatforms dop te hou vir inligting oor komende produsentedae in hul streke—moenie dié waardevolle geleenthede misloop nie!

SAPPA Greetings / SAPPA Groete
